

REMOTE CONTROL CAPABLE OF MEASURING BODY TEMPERATURE

Abstract

A remote control for controlling an electronic device includes a housing, a remote control module installed inside the housing for controlling the electronic device according to an input signal, and a body temperature measuring module installed inside the housing, for sensing body temperature by infrared rays.